I confirm that Victor has opened several Internet Explorer windows at the same time and toggled between them and using the History function to compare prices on National Rail and The Trainline. Victor used Thetrainline.com to book train tickets and checked the security ratings of the site prior to giving his credit card details. After booking his ticket Victor deleted all temporary internet files and checked that no personal information remained on the computer by using History, which was empty as expected.		Date: 7/10/04
